One positive impact of mobile phones has been in the workplace. It is now easier to contact both colleagues and customers than in the past, for example. This means that work and business can be done more quickly rather than having to wait for people to get back to their desks or to get home to talk to them. This leads to economic benefits for both the individual and, in turn, society.

Another positive effect has been on families. Parents can have peace of mind when their children go out as a mobile phone allows for instant communication in the event of any problems. This can also make the children feel safer, knowing their parents are always just a phone call away.

紫藤雅思

If companies offer excellent pay packages, they can attract the most talented people in their fields to work for them.

紫藤雅思

If companies offer excellent pay packages, they can attract the most talented people in their fields to work for them.

请思考：

Which company？（where）

What kind of talented people？（who）

How people feel about ？（how）

What will people do（what）

For example, schools can hire more professional teachers. These teachers will appriciate/ feel grateful and will use more creative and innovative teaching methods to help students gain more knowledge and better academic performance

紫藤雅思

If companies offer excellent pay packages, they can attract the most talented people in their fields to work for them.

For example, technology companies like Google are able to employ the best programmers because of the huge sums that they are willing to pay. These well-paid employees are likely to be highly motivated to work hard and therefore drive their businesses successfully.
