3 Answer:

The maps illustrate how West Park School had changed since 1950.

Overall, although the layout of the school remained the same, there had been a number of changes, including the extension of the original site and the construction of new facilities.

In 1950, the school was built close to a main road and next to a number of houses. A large area behind the school was a playground, while the area behind the houses was farmland.

By 1980, the houses had been demolished in order to make way for a small car park and a science block. In addition to the existing playground, the school also gained the farmland and turned it into a sports field.

In 2010, the school building remained unchanged, but the car park was extended to cover the entire sports field. As a result, the playground was reduced in size and made room for a smaller sports field to its western side.
